

UNIVERSITY of York

Report on '
Denuclearising the RAF: Lessons for Irreversible Nuclear Disarmament'

Lots of this, but not all,
undertaken by the US

(assuming B61-12 bombs
remain under US control
at RAF Lakenheath)

“In June 2025, the Department announced that it intends to procure 12 F35As to be both training aircraft and capable of carrying nuclear weapons. But only now is the F-35 programme’s Senior Responsible Owner talking to other partner nations about what is required to deliver the new capabilities, and the Department has not produced any estimates of what these might cost... The Department acknowledged that becoming certified for the NATO nuclear mission will add new requirements to training, personnel and possibly infrastructure”

Report link